

Torra is known for being one of the best fishing spots in Namibia, although we didn't have much success due to very rough sea conditions, we did catch a few (very small). We loved every moment and will return to Torra for a full 2 week camp and fishing. But because this is very much part of the Skeleton Coast, you better be prepared – almost every night you hear tents blown and torn in the wind with the noise of hammers trying to get tent poles deeper into the sand – the wind here is hard and sometimes feels coming from all directions.

We also visited Terrace Bay, about 45km north of Torra with an awesome marble beach with the sea water playing with the marble rocks behind pushed up with every wave making an amazing noise. Also at Terrace Bay we found a Dune 4x4 Route which I could not resist to drive – remember to ask permission at the reception – this route, although difficult to find takes you up very high dunes, which we found to be very soft on the top.... Got stuck on top of the Dune, the huge 33" Maxxis was almost halfway covered in the sand with the chassis and diff stranded on top of the sand.... But deflating to .5 bar, sand tracks and the high lift jack plus more than 2 hours.... We got the Tuna out!

And yes.... Will do it again!!

Day 16 - 26 December 2015 (313km - 4 hours) Torra Bay to Swakop

We left Torra, really sad as we would loved to stay longer. The road through the park is excellent, with some places on the salt road the Mud tyres might even be noiser as on a tarr road.

On the way, there is a few very interested stops, from old ship wrecks to old mining sites, really worth while to stop and take a few pictures, O yes.... Normally Namibia is hot, but we had some very, very cold days as wel... which we was not really prepared for.

About halfway to Swakop there is pub, "Fisherman's Inn" or something like that, make sure you have a stop there! Also about 12km inland, its called the Dead Sea – but in fact it's an old mine filled with salt water, completely saturated with salt and other minerals. Just make sure you take a shower after you had a swim.... The salt are very abbrasive!

We Stayed two days at Swakop, with some Quad driving in the Dunes!
